

NED MURPHY

Lectures on "John Bull and Brother Jonathan" Last Night at Howard Avenue Baptist Church—America's Blessings—Mr. Murphy Says War With England is an Impossibility and Suicidal.

At Howard Avenue Baptist church last evening Ned Murphy, the well known temperance advocate, son of the late famous Francis Murphy, lectured on "John Bull and Brother Jonathan." In the course of his remarks he said: "America abounds in all the blessings which go to make up civilization. In no country of the world can so much of the necessities of life be purchased for $1 as in America. In every avenue of life in the United Kingdom American influences can be traced. The provision shops of Great Britain are overflowing with American products. The many commercial connections of the two countries tend to strengthen the ties of brotherhood. In the perfection of the telephone alone America has given to England and the world a gift of inestimable value. It has been frequently said that in art, science and literature America cannot be compared with England and this is probably true because our day is not yet far spent, but even now the works of our poets are found in cultured homes in England, as well as America, and the bust of our own Longfellow occupies a place in Westminster Abbey. John Bull and Brother Jonathan are of the same kin and kind, both have the same heritage of freedom and faith, and have the same Bible. They stand shoulder to shoulder in the great battle against ignorance, and especially intemperance. In the fight against the latter their leaders have been joined on many a field. John Bull and Brother Jonathan have helped the world along wonderfully on its way of religion and liberty."

At the close of his lecture Mr. Murphy said: "War is an impossibility, and suicidal, to say the least. At the banquet tendered to General Miles in New York a few days ago Governor Coffin of this state made a strong conservative speech in the midst of a gathering heartily favoring war, and his patriotic thoughts were unaffected on that occasion. But make itself felt during this tide of popular enthusiasm. The commercial interests of the two countries will prevent war. In case of hostilities, which there will not be, England's shipping interests would suffer the most. The Shipping World, London's chief shipping journal, the other day expressed the idea of English commercial interests when it said: "We care nothing in this crisis about political pretensions, even in those of the first magnitude, involved in the American policy, but we care everything for the principle of arbitration as a substitute for war in the settlement of international disputes. We have escaped a conflict of arms until now, because Venezuela is too small to fight. If our cause is a fair one, we have nothing to fear from arbitration. If we have behaved in a grasping and an arbitrary way, and have presumed upon our strength to set justice aside, we ought to be stopped in our unrighteous career."

Mr. Murphy's lecture was keenly enjoyed by his audience and his sparkling wit bubbled forth at just the right points.

WHAT CAPTAIN JOHNSON, U. S. A., SAID ON THE WAR TALK.

He was accompanied to New Haven by Captain Johnson of the Eighth United States Cavalry. In regard to the possibility of war between the United States and England Captain Johnson said: "There will be no war. The general impression throughout the United States army seems to be that conservative sentiments will prevail and the question will be amicably settled. In case of war, however, our militia is in a good condition to go to work at once. In nearly all the states the militia has been drilled into a good state of discipline and this is especially true of the militia of Pennsylvania and of New York, in both of which states the militia has been drilled to a discipline nearly equal to that in the United States army. In regard to the Canadians coming down to Pittsburgh, N. Y., if war were declared, this would be impossible without a long struggle, as the United States government would at once concentrate a large force in that locality in order to get possession of the entrance to the lakes and thereby stop British ships of war from getting in to storm our lake cities."

AT THE NEW BRIDGE.

Piling Carried Away by Floating Ice. Middletown, Dec. 23.—The piling on the second pier of the new Connecticut river bridge between Middletown and Portland was carried away some time last night, causing damage amounting to $500. This piling was driven for the false work for the iron framing. New piling was placed in position to-day and the work on the bridge will not be delayed. To-night a tugboat is patrolling the river to prevent further damage to the bridge by the tide.

The Metropolitan Specialty company is billed for the opera house Christmas evening, December 25.

Two men walked across the lake on the ice near the center Sunday morning and why they did not break through is still a mystery to the men who were watching the foolhardy experiment from the south end. The ice has not been safe for the past three days and the men can thank their luck stars that they escaped a conflict of arms until now, because Venezuela is too small to fight. If our cause is a fair one, we have nothing to fear from arbitration. If we have behaved in a grasping and an arbitrary way, and have presumed upon our strength to set justice aside, we ought to be stopped in our unrighteous career."

Mr. Murphy's lecture was keenly enjoyed by his audience and his sparkling wit bubbled forth at just the right points.

Waterbury's Election Contest. Waterbury, Dec. 23.—Waterbury's election contest was this afternoon thrown out of court by Judge Wheeler, sitting in the superior court. James J. Egan, the democratic candidate for constable, contested the election of his republican opponent on the ground that the booth tenders had marked their initials only on the ballot envelopes, whereas they should have written their names. The court this afternoon decided to dismiss the case.

Diphtheria in Branford. Branford, Dec. 23.—An incident diphtheria epidemic is in progress. There have been but two cases thus far, but the death of the child yesterday resulted from diphtheria of the most malignant type, and it is said, scores of children have been exposed. Every effort is being made to prevent the spread of the disease, and the most rigid quarantine is maintained.

LOCKED UP IN A STORE. A Cutter's Predicament in Meigs & Co's Store Last Night.

About 10 o'clock last evening when the police were going by Meigs & Co's store on Church street, near Chapel, they were surprised to see a man groping around in the closed store. When he saw the officers he ran to the door and told the officers that he was a cutter in the employ of the firm and had been locked up in the store when it was closed up for the night. The police kept a close watch on the store and sent word to Mr. Baird, the manager, to come down and investigate. The latter promptly replied to the summons and liberated the man, who, he explained, was his chief cutter, John Siebert.

One Sunday morning not long ago a certain young boy was playing with a small step-ladder. His mother saw what he was doing and asked him what he was playing. "Oh," he said, "I'm playing this step-ladder is my bicycle." "But," replied his mother, "don't you know that it's wrong to ride a bicycle on Sunday?" "I know, mamma, but I'm playing I'm a Jew,"—Life.
